Alberta Parishable Produce Is Assuming Large Proportions

VANCOUVER IS BEST OUTLET, SAYS DUCLOS

Local Cold Storage Head Investigates Facilities at Pacific Coast

A. S. Duclos, who returned yesterday from Vancouver, where he has been seeking an outlet for poultry and other perishable produce from the prairie provinces, and also looking into the possibility of erecting a cold storage plant at Vancouver, was interviewed by The Bulletin last night.

Mr. Duclos, who is manager of the Edmonton Cold Storage Company, gave his reason for visiting Vancouver as follows: "Owing to the recent increase in the production of farm produce in Alberta during the winter, it has been necessary to market the surplus to points outside Alberta through the short-haul routes, and it is now necessary to find a place to which to send the surplus."

Mr. Duclos said that the cold storage facilities at Vancouver are the best, and that the market for poultry and other perishable produce is large. He said that the market for poultry is particularly good, and that the market for other perishable produce is also good.

BILL IS STILL IN THE COMMITTEE STATE

Some Very Important Phases Have Not Been Agreed Upon

Beer will not likely be sold in licensed premises in the Province of Alberta much before the latter part of May, at least, according to present indications. It may be that it will be done a little before public drinking will be permitted.

The liquor control bill is still in committee state and it is understood that there will be no attempt on the part of the government to rush it through a he bill reading. This opinion is expressed by some of the members of the committee.

There are still a number of important questions to be decided upon. It is expected that the bill will be passed in the near future.

On the other hand Attorney General J. R. Brownlee who is in charge of the bill, says that he is not responsible for the bill. He says that the bill is the work of the committee.

Wheat Market Very Dull; Offerings Larger Than Market Able to Absorb

WINNIPEG, March 19.—The wheat market was very dull and drab today, considerably larger offerings coming out than the market could absorb, and prices eased, the May futures closing below the dollar mark. There was little change in seaboard or foreign news today, and although some wheat is being purchased by exporters, the amount is light, averaging around 200,000 to 300,000 bushels per day, and will, the large stocks on hand and local traders are rather pessimistic. Export houses report less business on their books for spring shipment than ever before, and unless exports expand the market on a much broader scale, the trade will be slow where the demand is to come from. At the close, May and July showed a loss of 5-8, and October 5-8.

Future barley, oats and rye were easier again today, with only a light consuming demand in evidence, while the flax also developed weakness.

Trading in cash wheat was almost at a standstill today, with the spreads on numbers one and two northern narrowing one eighth on a purely carrying charge basis. All other spreads were unchanged. Outside of a small demand from millers for numbers three and four, practically no business was worked.

Lacking demand, cash wheat showed an easier tendency to day. A fair demand exists for barley, but there is not much coming out. The contract grades for numbers three and four, which light stocks are against active trade.

Manipulation of Stocks
Prevents Profit Cut
for Elevators

(WINNIPEG, Man., March 19.—) The price spread between the contract grades of wheat and the lower grades of wheat, which has been a source of speculation, was explained today by the National Elevator Association. N. L. Leach, president of the association, explained that the price spread is due to the fact that the lower grades of wheat are not as good as the contract grades, and that the price spread is a result of the fact that the lower grades of wheat are not as good as the contract grades.

The reason why the spread between the lower grades and contract grades is so large is that there is a greater demand for the lower grades than there is for the contract grades. The witness pointed out that the grain at present is not as good as it was a year ago, and that the price spread is a result of the fact that the lower grades of wheat are not as good as the contract grades.

Asked if he could ever lose on early season purchases, Mr. Leach replied: "I have not lost on any early season purchases, but I have not made any early season purchases."
